(As you tell the story, let a student put the icon up for that day of creation on the wall)

In the beginning there was no earth or sky or sea or animals. And then God spoke in the darkness: "Let there be light!" And right away there was light, scattering the darkness and showing the infinite space. "That's good!" said God. "From now on, when it's dark it will be 'night' and when it's light, it will be 'day'."

The evening came and the night passed and then the light returned. That was the first day.

On the second day, God made the earth and over it He carefully hung a vast blue sky. He stood back and admired His creation. "That's good too!" said God and the second day was over.

The next morning God looked around and thought, "The earth needs to be a bit more organized." So, He put all the water in one place and all the dry land in another. When He had finished that, God made plants to cover the land. Dandelions and daffodils appeared. All sorts of trees and grasses began to grow. "It's looking great," said God and that was the end of the third day.

On the fourth day, God looked around and thought, "The daylight still needs a bit more work and the night is just too dark." So, He made the sun to light the sky during the day and the moon and stars to add a bit of sparkle to the night. He hung them in the sky and stepped back to look at his work. "This is coming along very well," said God.

The next day, God turned his attention to the water he had collected in the oceans. "I want these waters teeming with life!" As soon as He said it, it was so. In no time, there were millions of small fish darting through the shallow water and huge fish swimming in the ocean. God made birds, too. He sent them soaring through the air. "Ahh, that IS good!" said God. The dusk fell over the water and the sky grew dark and that was the end of the fifth day.

On the sixth day, God added creatures to the land. He made lions and tigers and bears. He made rabbits and sheep and cows. He added everything from ants to zebras to the land. But He still felt something was missing. So God added Mankind to enjoy and take care of all that He had created. God looked around and was happy with all He had made.

After six days, the whole universe was completed. On the seventh day God had a nice long rest and enjoyed looking at all He had made.

Activity: Creating Animals

Materials: Posterboard, Crayons

The Activity:

- Create no more than four groups from the big group.
- Give each group a posterboard and crayons.
- Explain to them that they are going to “create” a new animal.
- They need to draw the animal, name the animal, and tell its strengths and weaknesses (the strengths of an octopus would be eight legs, ink shield...the weaknesses would be soft body that is easily eaten by predators).
- After each group creates their new animal, let them show the big group and introduce their new animal.
- For the younger kids, the leaders may need to draw the animal as they tell the leaders what it should look like (how many legs, furry or not, etc.).

The Follow-up:

- In today’s lesson, we are talking about how God created everything, including animals and you and me.
- God created everything different and unique, just like your animals are different and unique.
- We are created by God and God loves us.
- We can live life without fear because we know our Creator.
